Weekend of romance on the blue coast of Southern Maine

By Diane Dale and Fanela Wright Globe Correspondent. Updated February 9, 2023, 12:00 p.m.

Some luxury rooms at the York Harbor Inn have four poster beds and gas fireplaces. PATRICK McHARRON/INN

Can you find romance along the cold and raw coast of Southern Maine? You can find romance anywhere with the right person and circumst. Southern Maine sets the stage perfectly, even for the most jaded lov room with a fireplace and soaking tub; long, quiet walks on seclude country skiing in snowy forests; a corner table in a cozy, local bar. I acclaimed restaurants are packed; come winter you'll have no trou (or finding a beachside parking spot.)

The Southern Maine coast, from Kittery to South Portland, is filled

Twinkling lights and cozy inns. Snowy woods and windswept beaches. Summer's tourists have gone home to hibernate, leaving New England's waterside communities in a state of peaceful repose. These days, more and more local businesses choose to stay open year-round, making winter a mellow—and romantic—time to head to the region's best-loved shore towns. Here are 5 New England towns perfect for a cozy Valentine's Day weekend.

Greet the day with steaming lattes and breakfast burritos at Rock City Coffee, an inviting, employee-owned café and coffee roastery on Main Street. Afterward, peruse the lovingly curated inventory of good reads and quirky merchandise at Hello Hello

Bar Harbor (or "Bah Hah-bah" as pronounced by the locals) is an adorable coastal town dotted with shops and restaurants. Start your day at Choco-latte for coffee and 2 Cats Restaurant for yummy breakfasts. Lobster is on the menu everywhere you go. I tried to eat as much seafood as possible, from fried clams and The Lobster Boat Salad at Stewman's Lobster Pound to crab cakes at Gayln's.

The lobster roll at Beacon Bar and Grill was warm and buttery on a soft roll and reasonably priced. Located in Trenton, this restaurant was on the way to the lumberjack show. Side Street Café. Geddv's Glamping is a glorious way to experience Maine in the fall. Smell the sweet autumnal breeze and soak in the rusty burgundies and golden yellow hues on the surrounding trees. Terramor Outdoor Resort gets the ecstatic-to-be-outdoors vibe just right. The tents are more like private hotel rooms, with comfy beds, warm showers, porches for sipping pour-over coffee and firepits for telling stories of the day. Our tent even included a private outdoor shower! There's a heated outdoor pool and events like yoga, live music, nature talks and beekeeping classes. The lodge is buzzing with activity, from happy families filling their bellies with pancakes in the morning to friends toasting amazing hikes in the evening.

We flew into Bangor, Maine, and were very happy to stay at the Bangor Aviator Hotel, connected to the airport, at the end of a long day. That way, we woke up fresh and ready to drive the 1.5 hours to
